Sleeping toys begin to stir on Christmas Eve . . .

ALICE'S TEA PARTY. Dolly Dress-Up (Pam Tester) pours a cup of tea for Old-Fashioned Alice (Laura McKee) while Andye Stagner remains asleep. The two dolls are the first to awaken on Christmas Eve. The student actors presented holiday performances in a tour of the 16 Granite City public elementary schools last week, ending Friday. The original script adapted from classic children's stories featured songs, dances and colorful scenes.

SPINNING TOP portrayed by Dee Dee Schleich reacts to noise that other toys are making as they awaken prior to the yearly visit by Santa Claus. Others reacting include a fire engine. The group is quieted by a clown who warns that "we must be good" so that Santa does not become unhappy with their behavior.

Oil exploration in Illinois covers span of 111 years

(101st of a Bicentennial year Press.Record series)
Arabe' squeeze play on oil availability and cost has availability and cost has petroleum in this state and elsewhere during the 1970s.

But the history of oil exploration in Illinois dates backmore than 111 years. Chicago metropolitan area alone contributes $40 billion to the gross national product, nearly as large an output as the entire nation of Italy. The production and the related employment depends on petroleum fuel and tubricants; 20 per cent of all state revenue derives from taxes on the petroleum industry and its Pertunately; Illinois is not totally dependent on sources

Fortunately, Illinois is not otally dependent on sources utside the state for this critical ommodity.

Nearly half of the state's 102

In 1913, prospectors opened e Carlyle pool in Clinton

County and the Sandoval pool in Marion County, the latter reporting 112 wells by the end of the year.

Life in the early oil fields was rough, colorful and dangerous. In the latter reporting 112 wells by the end of the year.

Life in the early oil fields was rough, colorful and dangerous. In Illinois oil required that the wells be periodically shot open with nitroglycerin, sometimes as much as 200 quarts per shot.

Arriver and cargo would simply disappear in a spectacular roar when a wheel dropped into a probled enroute to the well. #### Death penalty inaction leaves the crime outlook confused

Failure of Illinois legislators to enact a ew death penalty law is perhaps un-erstandable, in view of the zig-zag pattern whether executions are juminous mistances.

But a majority seems to believe that some crimes are so despicable that no other response is adequate. This feeling is bolstered by awareness that prison sentences are subject to later reductions by

Ominous report on real Soviet goal in limiting weapons

Press-Record Washington Bureau —
Chairman Leonid Brezhnev is getting impatient with the long pause in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks. When Treasury Secretary William Simon was at the dinner table in Moscow a few days ago, Mr. Brezhnev said it was "high time" that he effort to reach a SALT II agreement was resumed.

launch silos.

The intelligence report, says UPI, concludes that the Russians are working toward strategic superiority over the United States despite any SALT agreements.

The Ford-Brezhnev summit at Vladivostok in 1974 produce a tentative agreement that would limit each side to 2,400 missiles and bombers, with no more than 1,320 of them armed with multiple warheads. Developments since then have shown the pitfalls in, such numerical formulas when advancing technology produces new weapons like the cruise missile and a bomber like the Backfire which can serve either a tactical or strategic role.

Mr. Brezhnev's sense of urgency toward resuming the SALT talks removes any doubt about the willingness of the test of the SALT II agreement in place before the SALT II agreement respire next October.

However, there is still doubt — even a growing doubt — about whether SALT II can be made inclusive enough to deal with new weapons technology that can upset the strategic balance, and whether the Russians really want it to.
